An objection was raised with regard to two of the courses included in the recommendations; Mark 3280 and 4270. Though FEC had approved the courses, the faculty still felt there were some jurisdictional issues and wished to review closer.

The Chair advised that typically items that are FEC approved are given more weight, but that Education Council can still reconsider. The Curriculum Committee recommends approval of these courses because FEC has approved them. Responding to a question about the ramifications of not short-cycling these two courses, the Chair indicated that the timeframe exists to allow the FEC to discuss further and still put these courses into place by September. Responding to a query regarding costs to the student population as a whole, Betty indicated that this is a user-pay program; students would pay University of California non-resident tuition.

b) Université François Rabelais de Tours, France (UFR)

Betty indicated that this agreement is meant for student exchange purposes, whereby students from France can study in English here at Douglas, and vice versa. She noted that this institute has agreements with many universities in Europe and North America, and that Douglas is the only college with whom they are pursuing a relationship. When asked about costs, Betty advised that students would pay Douglas College tuition and study abroad, which would be a substantial savings.

In response to a question, Betty indicated that students would have to meet language requirements at both institutions. As well, Betty responded that there are numerous student assistance programs in place as both institutes
