

Course Information

May 1988

Date

Academic

Academic

B. Department: Social Sciences

New Course

Revision of Course Information Form

The University of Dated February 1982

3

Geography 160

British Columbia

Descriptive Title

Semester Credits

Subject & Course No.

Summary of Revisions

Calendar Description

(Enter date and Section)

Revised
ed. 1982-08-25
Section C, E and B

An introductory regional geography of British Columbia. This course will include a general study of the physical environment and the historical/settlement background, but will concentrate on problems relevant to sections of the Pacific Coast area, such as economic development and resource conservation, urbanization and rural areas. The course will include an examination of the role of the West in Canada's future development.

Course Prerequisites

Nil

Corequisites

Nil

Laboratory
Seminar

4
H/S
H/S

Course

Practical Experience

Author and Maximize the Use of the Bibliography by Students (Use Bibliographic Form)

A.L. Atlas of British Columbia 1979. University of British Columbia Press.

Farley,

IV. The economic setting

Economic models as applied

a) Infrastructure

The transportation network

Power supply

- Forestry
- Fishing
- Mining
- Agriculture

Government intervention
Resource management and conservation

- e) Manufacturing
- d) Tertiary industries
- e) Land use conflicts

V. Demographic studies

- a) Urban development
- b) Rural settlement
- c) Minority groups/cultural diversity

VII. The role of the West

Method of instruction

- 1. Lectures and seminars. Any material including 35 mm slides, and films.

2. Field work, group and individual

- o. map and air photo interpretation.

R. Course Evaluation

The evaluation will be carried out in accordance with Douglas College policy

Tests and exams

- o. abs/field reports up to 30%
- o. Project up to 30%
- o. Map

At the beginning of the semester the instructor will discuss the following